

10

FAIRY TALE

Sayani Mukherjee
Chandannagar, india

A midst bow ties and diamond cut pieces
I merely fly as a paper flower.
The petals curl with wispy cigar rain
Of high towers and aristocratic boot finish.
Toes of my fairytale are untied with
Cheeky freewill of kites
Usurping the limitless monarchy
Of nature's very own.
Dragonflies, butterflies abound in
Manuscript of scholars,
The pages carry the dissection of
Each organ in plenty.
While my notebook flowers in dried leaves
Of an unknown local tree.

This is an Open Access e-Journal Published Under A Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License

To Cite the Article: Mukherjee, Sayani. "Fairy Tale". Literary Cognizance, II-4 (March, 2022): 16-16. Web.