THE HIVE

Jyoti Muglikar Patil
Pune, Maharashtra, India

Cuddling in the shores of dawned hives
Lay the heir of sabotaged breath
Legending an oral hour of condensed concern
Sublimated at the udders of a wandering debt.

The tonsured buddocks of a silent bread
Gardened the cobwebs of a faithless seed
Striding over a footless march of penny
Cradled around an earnest feed.

The barking slumber of ocean's gluttons
Dodge the porous cusps of dreams
Savouring the tropic's wasted irony
Browed over the skin of clambering sleep

The squeal of dead libraries crawl
Over the charity of its washed croaks
And the blades of masked moonlight
In the gallows of stifled thunder soar
