

05

THE LAME

Dr. Saraswathy Selvarajan
Assistant Professor of English
Vellore Institute of Technology
Vellore, Tamil Nadu, India

I left it incomplete
Nor want of emotions, nor
Of thoughts, but of words
The slanting and the leaning
The curves and the dots
All distort its meaning
The insanity in its peak
The perceptions and the deceptions
Creeps onto each other
Adorns their imperfections;
Eats the half-baked truths
They are wedded and so are locked
The real submerges in its illusion
Feeds on each other
For all out there
To stumble; to die
Yet takes re-births
The phoenixes and so are lies
I am born again to complete
This time, nor want of words
Nor of emotions, but of truths
I left it incomplete again.

This is an Open Access e-Journal Published Under A Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License

To Cite the Article: Selvarajan, Saraswathy, “The Lame”. Literary Cognizance, III-2 (September, 2022): 11-12. Web.

