IF THE DEVIL CAN WHISPER

Alshaad Kara

Mare-Gravier, Beau-Bassin, Mauritius

Silent tales are whispered from well-wishers.
Those are washed the second the morning waves appear,
By the water.

Drink a jar of such a curse,
You will evoke the grudge of the devil himself.

Only a single word from a well-wisher,
Can wash away the whispered whistles...
Far from the morning waves,
By the water.

If the devil could whisper,
He would enshrine a watchman to drink a jar of such a curse,
Evoking a wind of whispered spirits.
