

11

CLOSED WINDOW

Shamsiya T.

PG Student,,

Ideal College for Advanced Studies, Kadakasseri, Kuttipuram, Malappuram (district), Kerala, India

==========

Beyond my back, a dreadful heaviness left by them.....

My gloomy eyes,

gazed at the pillow,

It covered with sleepless dust.

Fury lullabies elevate,

Screaming of little feet.

Milk bulged breast,

lean forward, it's pain,

made numbness in veins .

Disdainful smiles, covered at me

With dark evil eyes.

They deride at my,

Burning stiches on tummy.

And they mumble at my baby,

“such a lean and dark one”.

My heart broken in to pieces,

It's edges were sharp.

I wish to cut their dark tongue.

But, I swallowed my tempness

With silence.....

I opened the closed window,

The light slowly entering,

Through the dirty cobweb,
Dankling on the window.
And it spanned, to the gloomy room,
But they swiftly closed the window.
And added, by showing ,
Yellow stained teeth.
“The baby disturbed by light” .

This is an Open Access e-Journal Published Under A Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License

To Cite the Poem: T, Shamsiya. “Closed Window.” Literary Cognizance, V-4 (March, 2025): 24-25. Web.

